

My Locks of Love

Written and Illustrated by:

Madelyn

One day when I was two years old, my mom told me about a place called Locks of Love.

She told me that they take healthy hair that people grow long and turn it into wigs for people that lose their hair
because of cancer.

It made me feel sad that kids had cancer and lost their hair.

I wanted to grow my hair for the kids so that they could have my hair for their wig.

I have been growing my hair for over three years.

It has been fun growing my hair.

When you give your hair you have to have a ponytail at least ten inches and when you cut the hair it has to be above the pony tail holder.

I am getting it cut this spring and I hope whoever Locks of Love gives it to will like it.
